

Promoting The Role Of Private Investment In Infrastructure

About us

GIIA is the membership body for the world's leading private investors in infrastructure. We represent fund managers, pension funds, sovereign wealth funds, insurance companies, investment banks, and the leading advisers and consultants to the sector. Collectively, our members finance and operate $500 billion of infrastructure assets.

GIIA exists to make the case for private investment in infrastructure across the world. We aim to provide the authoritative voice and point of engagement between our members, governments and regulators to improve mutual understanding and, through dialogue, unlock the investment in essential assets and services that will help deliver the benefits we all need.

Our task

Infrastructure investment is critical for economic growth, job creation, and meeting environmental targets. But there is a consensus that a global infrastructure gap exists now and is growing.

Although the need for investment in infrastructure grows each year, governments' budgets are often too constrained to provide the necessary funding, while the private sector has capital it is ready to deploy. We believe governments at all levels should work with the private sector to unlock the investment and expertise to support more efficient management and delivery of infrastructure.

GIIA aims to encourage governments to look at a range of models which have worked well around the world that can deliver the positive outcomes all parties require.

We can act as a channel for governments to harness private sector experience and expertise, and share best international practice to deliver long-term sustainable investment.

Evidence shows that the world needs

$3.3

trillion a year

invested in infrastructure to support global economic growth aspirations.

However, the level of global infrastructure spending was estimated to be

$2.3

trillion in 2015

“At the time when we are seeing a rise in populism and protectionism in multiple markets, we welcome the continued work of GIIA to raise our sector’s collective voice and improve dialogue with governments around the world.”

The conditions for success

For private investment in infrastructure to deliver the positive outcomes we all want, we know from our members' experience that there are four key conditions for success:

1. A long-term approach to planning looking beyond the immediate political cycle
2. A stable and transparent regulatory environment for future operations
3. Commitment from investors to responsible ownership and management
4. Clear and effective engagement and communication between governments, investors and stakeholders (including regulators, customers and communities) through all stages

Our purpose is to encourage improved dialogue on these themes with the overall objective of unlocking more private capital to deliver much needed investment and economic growth.

Membership

Membership to GIIA is open to companies that play an active role in the infrastructure industry via investment or other activities that support the investment process.

Member benefits:

- The opportunity to inform and help shape our high-level advocacy on behalf of the sector
- Participation in governmental dialogue in a variety of markets
- Contribution and access to evidence-based reports and analysis
- Learning and sharing best practice through participation in industry events
- Relationship building within the sector at regular networking events

There are two categories of corporate membership:

Full membership is available to equity investors and managers of funds directing infrastructure investments. Full members are eligible to be elected to the Management Board.

Associate membership is available to a broad range of advisers, consultants and other leading service providers to the sector. Associate members may serve on working groups.

“Investment in infrastructure provides jobs and supports economic growth at local and national level. The private sector is crucial to delivery of improved infrastructure but we need to do more to ensure this essential contribution is better understood.”

“We encourage the industry to come together, through GIIA, to help us develop the evidence which shows the positive impacts of private investment and to join our activities across international markets in order to address the infrastructure gap.”
